

Special Issue

BioMEMS and Advanced Analytical Sensors for Biological Applications

Message from the Guest Editors

The “Sensors” journal calls for papers for a special issue of “BioMEMS and Advanced Analytical Sensors for Biological Applications”. We invite papers that study novel applications of portable MEMS-based sensors in areas such as analytical chemistry, biology, agriculture and medicine. We also invite papers that generate new theoretical and empirical insights in the area of BioMEMS sensor design and manufacturing. We invite scholars from multiple disciplines, both natural sciences and engineering to this special issue. All submission will be subject to the peer-review process. We expect this special issue to contribute to significant cross-discipline idea exchange and to develop research trends in bioinstrumentation design and applications.
