

Special Issue

Intelligent Sensors - 2010

Message from the Guest Editor

The objective of this special issue is to provide high quality research results on intelligent (or smart) sensors. Full research papers with new results or a comprehensive review of the state-of-art of intelligent sensors and their applications are encouraged for submission. There are no restrictions on the topics of interest of this special issue.

Authors are encouraged to submit experimental and theoretical results in as much detail as possible of their research on this topic and/or their industrial applications (but not limited) to: automotive, consumer, environmental, medical, biological, chemical, electrical, mechatronics, robotic, nautical, aeronautical and space measurement systems. In addition, authors who are working on intelligent materials are encouraged to submit full research papers. Prof. Dr. Wilmar Hernandez

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Sensors is a leading journal devoted to fast publication of the latest achievements of technological developments and scientific research in the huge area of physical, chemical and biochemical sensors, including remote sensing and sensor networks. Both experimental and theoretical papers are published, including all aspects of sensor design, technology, proof of concept and application. Sensors organizes Special Issues devoted to specific sensing areas and applications each year.
