Microwave Sensors and Radar Techniques

Message from the Guest Editors

Radar technology has been known for more than 100 years and it has been under permanent development for both civilian and military applications. The development of microwave technology has been encouraged by radar technology and they have both evolved together. In recent years, development trends of radar technologies can be seen, in particular, in the field of system architecture, algorithms, waveforms, signal processing, materials and new device design, new applications and practical solutions. Therefore, it is our pleasure to invite you all to contribute to this Special Issue of Sensors.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Sensors is a leading journal devoted to fast publication of the latest achievements of technological developments and scientific research in the huge area of physical, chemical and biochemical sensors, including remote sensing and sensor networks. Both experimental and theoretical papers are published, including all aspects of sensor design, technology, proof of concept and application. Sensors organizes Special Issues devoted to specific sensing areas and applications each year.

Editor-in-Chief
