Innovations in Photogrammetry and Remote Sensing: Modern Sensors, New Processing Strategies and Advances in Applications (Volume II)

Message from the Guest Editors

This Special Issue is seeking papers showing the progress made in key areas of photogrammetry and remote sensing. Papers focused on modern and/or forthcoming sensors, improvements in data processing strategies, and the assessment of their reliability are welcome for the Special Issue. Additionally, we aim to collect papers devoted to the application of such innovations as proof of the contribution made by the observation of the natural and built environment and our understanding of phenomena at the required spatial scale. About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Sensors is a leading journal devoted to fast publication of the latest achievements of technological developments and scientific research in the huge area of physical, chemical and biochemical sensors, including remote sensing and sensor networks. Both experimental and theoretical papers are published, including all aspects of sensor design, technology, proof of concept and application. Sensors organizes Special Issues devoted to specific sensing areas and applications each year.
