

Special Issue

Tactile Sensors and Sensing System 2019

Message from the Guest Editor

The Special Issue aims to pave the way of future research directions and also open new perspectives enabled by recent achievements. Special attention will be given to novel applications in (but not limited to) health care, human-machine interaction, virtual/augmented reality, arts, and tactile internet. In this Special Issue, we focus on both insights and advancements in tactile sensing with the goal of bridging different research areas (e.g., material science, computer science, electronics, robotics, neuroscience, mechanics, sensors, MEMS/NEMS, additive and 3D manufacturing, bio and neuro-engineering). We would like to receive commentaries, perspectives, and insightful reviews on related topics as well as technological breakthroughs of original works, civil, and industrial applications in both short communications and full papers.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Sensors is a leading journal devoted to fast publication of the latest achievements of technological developments and scientific research in the huge area of physical, chemical and biochemical sensors, including remote sensing and sensor networks. Both experimental and theoretical papers are published, including all aspects of sensor design, technology, proof of concept and application. Sensors organizes Special Issues devoted to specific sensing areas and applications each year.
