

Special Issue

Holistic Approaches: The Inter-Effect Between Social Ecology and Social Work for Vulnerable Groups

Message from the Guest Editor

This special issue delves into the relationship between social ecology and social work, focusing on their impact on the protection and empowerment of vulnerable groups. The edition aims to understand how integrating social-ecological principles into social work practices can create more effective and sustainable support systems for marginalized populations. This edition will explore dimensions of the inter-effect between social ecology and social work through a diverse collection of research articles, case studies, and policy analyses. Bringing together a range of perspectives and expertise, this special edition aims to foster a deeper understanding of social ecology and social work synergies to inspire strategies and interventions that leverage these synergies to support and empower marginalized populations, ultimately contributing to more resilient and inclusive communities.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Societies (ISSN 2075-4698) is an interdisciplinary journal that brings together different scientific approaches to engage with societal questions to enhance our understanding of the social realm throughout history. The journal publishes original empirical research papers, literature reviews, and conceptual papers. Our aim is to publish papers that have a significant impact on addressing present and emerging societal questions. Therefore, we encourage researchers to publish their results in as much detail as possible. For empirical research papers and literature reviews, all experimental details must be provided, so that the results are reproducible. We also encourage the publication of timely theoretical pieces on topics of interest to existing and emerging societal questions. Papers are either published in the open journal or in Special Issues devoted to specific topics of interest to the field.
