Gender and Social Class Issue in Academic Field

Message from the Guest Editors

It can be proved that the persistence of gender differentials in academia persists, as in the majority of social spaces, and that in some countries they are actually widening. Statistics from UN Women, the OECD and from other national and international institutions show that there are also very few women in research and higher academic positions. If we add to this the fact that the university has not opened its doors more widely to welcome the underprivileged and vulnerable social classes, the situation is clearly inequitable. We must ask ourselves when and where the gap of participation in research and entrepreneurship begins. In the framework of SDG, this special issue therefore invites and welcomes critical research on the role of gender and social class in academic and professional field.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Societies (ISSN 2075-4698) is an interdisciplinary journal that brings together different scientific approaches to engage with societal questions to enhance our understanding of the social realm throughout history. The journal publishes original empirical research papers, literature reviews, and conceptual papers. Our aim is to publish papers that have a significant impact on addressing present and emerging societal questions. Therefore, we encourage researchers to publish their results in as much detail as possible. For empirical research papers and literature reviews, all experimental details must be provided, so that the results are reproducible. We also encourage the publication of timely theoretical pieces on topics of interest to existing and emerging societal questions. Papers are either published in the open journal or in Special Issues devoted to specific topics of interest to the field.
