

Special Issue

Racial Equity in Public Health Policy and Reproductive Health, Rights and Justice

Message from the Guest Editors

The scope of this Special Issue is to highlight and amplify racial equity in public health policy and reproductive health, rights and justice. We seek articles, reviews or concept papers that include but are not limited to: descriptive or creative projects, reports of interventions, proposed actions and/or policy analyses that move individuals and institutions to a greater understanding of health equity. The focus of this Special Issue is health equity, policy, reproductive health, rights and justice. The scope is to provide descriptive work, creative works and reports of interventions, ideas, and policy solutions geared toward resolving health disparities and inequities. This issue will usefully supplement the existing literature by centering policy, solutions, and radical ideas yet to be fully embraced that deserve attention and that are evidence-based, but are not scaled or amplified by traditional scholarly publications. We seek changemaking manuscripts that will provide new directions, insights, and opportunities to improve the health of pregnant-capable people, people across the reproductive spectrum, and systems that provide their care.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Societies (ISSN 2075-4698) is an interdisciplinary journal that brings together different scientific approaches to engage with societal questions to enhance our understanding of the social realm throughout history. The journal publishes original empirical research papers, literature reviews, and conceptual papers. Our aim is to publish papers that have a significant impact on addressing present and emerging societal questions. Therefore, we encourage researchers to publish their results in as much detail as possible. For empirical research papers and literature reviews, all experimental details must be provided, so that the results are reproducible. We also encourage the publication of timely theoretical pieces on topics of interest to existing and emerging societal questions. Papers are either published in the open journal or in Special Issues devoted to specific topics of interest to the field.
