Public Policy and the Inclusion of People with Disabilities at Work in the Aftermath of COVID-19

Message from the Guest Editors

Dear Colleagues: This Special Issue aims to explore various themes, such as the issues in the aftermath of the COVID-19 pandemic, the role of the public sector, gender, the disclosure of disabilities, the identity of workers with disabilities, teleworking, communication and relationships with superiors and colleagues, and work-life balance. Finally, it examines how these different elements affect the possibilities of obtaining and evolving in an employment environment that meets the needs and aspirations of people with disabilities and offers them the same professional development opportunities as others. Authors wishing to contribute to this topics conceptual, methodological and empirical development are welcome to submit papers addressing the above.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Societies (ISSN 2075-4698) is an interdisciplinary journal that brings together different scientific approaches to engage with societal questions to enhance our understanding of the social realm throughout history. The journal publishes original empirical research papers, literature reviews, and conceptual papers. Our aim is to publish papers that have a significant impact on addressing present and emerging societal questions. Therefore, we encourage researchers to publish their results in as much detail as possible. For empirical research papers and literature reviews, all experimental details must be provided, so that the results are reproducible. We also encourage the publication of timely theoretical pieces on topics of interest to existing and emerging societal questions. Papers are either published in the open journal or in Special Issues devoted to specific topics of interest to the field.
