Young People, Risk and Opportunity Across the Globe

Message from the Guest Editor

Youth studies, youth policy and youth work are on the move. Youth studies are being reformulated to strengthen perspectives from the 'global south'. Youth policy is on the map, with proponents arguing for more transversal policy responses to the diverse issues affecting young people, from technological change to violent extremism. Youth work is now recognized as complementary to formal education. Societies is calling for papers for a special edition that interrogates how young people's lives are 'playing out' and 'working out' - domestically, economically, politically and culturally - in different parts of the world. An overview of major trends is particularly desirable. If you wish to make a significant contribution to the debate about young people in contemporary societies, please send an abstract of 300 words to howard.williamson@southwales.ac.uk. The deadline for abstract submissions is 31st July 2018. You will be notified as to whether we wish your abstract to be developed into a full paper. The deadline for full paper submissions, for peer review, will be 30th September 2018.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Societies (ISSN 2075-4698) is an interdisciplinary journal that brings together different scientific approaches to engage with societal questions to enhance our understanding of the social realm throughout history. The journal publishes original empirical research papers, literature reviews, and conceptual papers. Our aim is to publish papers that have a significant impact on addressing present and emerging societal questions. Therefore, we encourage researchers to publish their results in as much detail as possible. For empirical research papers and literature reviews, all experimental details must be provided, so that the results are reproducible. We also encourage the publication of timely theoretical pieces on topics of interest to existing and emerging societal questions. Papers are either published in the open journal or in Special Issues devoted to specific topics of interest to the field.
