Corporealities of Care Research, Policy and Knowledge

Message from the Guest Editor

This Special Issue of Societies invites original research on arts-based and informed approaches in intersectional care research, policy analysis and critical scholarship in the social sciences.

In Care Work: Dreaming Disability Justice, Leah Lakshmi Piepzna-Samarasinha (2018) describes disability justice culture as “simultaneously beautiful and practical”, while also noting that, “When we do disability justice work, it becomes impossible to look at disability and not examine how colonialism created it.” The ways care appears, is acknowledged, desired, done and undone are inextricably entangled with/in colonial histories and cartographies.

Submissions are encouraged that consider: the art of care/care of art in a postcolonial praxis of resistance; the aesthetics of (anti)ableist and (in)equitable care; the poetics of episodic or “long-term care”; artistic expression and/as embodied care knowledge; examples of creativity and intersectionality in care policy and practice in the Global North and Global South.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Societies (ISSN 2075-4698) is an interdisciplinary journal that brings together different scientific approaches to engage with societal questions to enhance our understanding of the social realm throughout history. The journal publishes original empirical research papers, literature reviews, and conceptual papers. Our aim is to publish papers that have a significant impact on addressing present and emerging societal questions. Therefore, we encourage researchers to publish their results in as much detail as possible. For empirical research papers and literature reviews, all experimental details must be provided, so that the results are reproducible. We also encourage the publication of timely theoretical pieces on topics of interest to existing and emerging societal questions. Papers are either published in the open journal or in Special Issues devoted to specific topics of interest to the field.
