

Special Issue

Eating in the USA

Message from the Guest Editor

Looking at eating and food choice is how we understand personality and culture in the United States. Here, we probe sociocultural, economic, and biological backgrounds that motivate eating and food choice through topics that are far-ranging, including marketing, product placement in retail outlets and line, transactions within families, ethnic foods, vegans, emotional eating, food deserts, and celebrations. Contributions have to follow one of the three categories of papers (article, conceptual paper or review) of the journal and address the topic of the special issue.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Societies (ISSN 2075-4698) is an interdisciplinary journal that brings together different scientific approaches to engage with societal questions to enhance our understanding of the social realm throughout history. The journal publishes original empirical research papers, literature reviews, and conceptual papers. Our aim is to publish papers that have a significant impact on addressing present and emerging societal questions. Therefore, we encourage researchers to publish their results in as much detail as possible. For empirical research papers and literature reviews, all experimental details must be provided, so that the results are reproducible. We also encourage the publication of timely theoretical pieces on topics of interest to existing and emerging societal questions. Papers are either published in the open journal or in Special Issues devoted to specific topics of interest to the field.
