

Special Issue

Housing and Homelessness since COVID-19

Message from the Guest Editor

Dear Colleagues: Economic downturns are key indicators of homelessness and housing insecurity. Individuals who experience homelessness may also often find it challenging to access housing services after losing their housing due to bureaucratic inequalities within the current social policies. This Special Issue, published in Societies, considers the economic downturn during the COVID-19 pandemic, by focusing on the current knowledge on issues of homelessness and housing insecurity, as well as how social policies can be improved. Novel research papers, methodological papers, systematic reviews, and case reports are all welcome for submission to this issue. Empirical papers using a variety of research designs and methodologies (qualitative, quantitative, or mixed methodology) are also welcome. We will accept manuscripts from various disciplines, including sociology, social work, anthropology, epidemiology, psychology, geography, political science, and public health, etc. The studies in this edition will also aim to reflect perspectives from different countries and/or regions.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Societies (ISSN 2075-4698) is an interdisciplinary journal that brings together different scientific approaches to engage with societal questions to enhance our understanding of the social realm throughout history. The journal publishes original empirical research papers, literature reviews, and conceptual papers. Our aim is to publish papers that have a significant impact on addressing present and emerging societal questions. Therefore, we encourage researchers to publish their results in as much detail as possible. For empirical research papers and literature reviews, all experimental details must be provided, so that the results are reproducible. We also encourage the publication of timely theoretical pieces on topics of interest to existing and emerging societal questions. Papers are either published in the open journal or in Special Issues devoted to specific topics of interest to the field.
