Juvenile Delinquency: Causes and Solutions

Message from the Guest Editor

We invite you to submit manuscripts to Societies (ISSN 2075-4698) as part of the Special Issue 'Juvenile Delinquency: Causes and Solutions'. Submissions that examine the role of individual, social, and ecological influences in the etiology and prevention of juvenile delinquency are welcomed. Special emphasis will be placed on the integration of theories, research, and/or practice in illustrating how and what can be done to reduce juvenile delinquency from a community and public health framework. Contributors from public health, criminology, criminal justice, psychology, psychiatry, sociology, public health, social work, and allied fields are encouraged to submit a full paper for publication. It is hoped that this issue will advance our understanding of youth delinquency and help in identifying effective strategies for prevention.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Societies (ISSN 2075-4698) is an interdisciplinary journal that brings together different scientific approaches to engage with societal questions to enhance our understanding of the social realm throughout history. The journal publishes original empirical research papers, literature reviews, and conceptual papers. Our aim is to publish papers that have a significant impact on addressing present and emerging societal questions. Therefore, we encourage researchers to publish their results in as much detail as possible. For empirical research papers and literature reviews, all experimental details must be provided, so that the results are reproducible. We also encourage the publication of timely theoretical pieces on topics of interest to existing and emerging societal questions. Papers are either published in the open journal or in Special Issues devoted to specific topics of interest to the field.
