Solving Complex Problems, Helping a World in Crisis

Message from the Guest Editor

COVID-19, racial violence, unemployment, poverty and economic depression, climate change, terrorism, mass migration, and the spread of weapons of mass destruction are among the most visible contemporary global threats that, each by themselves, severely disrupt not only our way of life but potentially also our ability to live. How can we effectively address complex problems? How can we create the conditions that enable every human and our natural and physical environment to flourish? What, if any, are factors that could replace fear with hope for a better future? We invite your contributions that examine all aspects of complex problems and develop recommendations for how to address them locally, domestically, as well as internationally.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Societies (ISSN 2075-4698) is an interdisciplinary journal that brings together different scientific approaches to engage with societal questions to enhance our understanding of the social realm throughout history. The journal publishes original empirical research papers, literature reviews, and conceptual papers. Our aim is to publish papers that have a significant impact on addressing present and emerging societal questions. Therefore, we encourage researchers to publish their results in as much detail as possible. For empirical research papers and literature reviews, all experimental details must be provided, so that the results are reproducible. We also encourage the publication of timely theoretical pieces on topics of interest to existing and emerging societal questions. Papers are either published in the open journal or in Special Issues devoted to specific topics of interest to the field.
