

Special Issue

Democracy, Politics and Innovation, Social Integration and Global Politics in the Contemporary World

Message from the Guest Editor

This Special Issue centers on a cross-disciplinary dialogue about fast-moving changes in society, the economy, and democracy. Analyses can focus on nation-states, regions, or operate within a comparative framework, or concentrate on the global system as a whole. Global disruptions and global politics have effects and do matter. Key issues include climate change, gender and social equality, aging populations, migration, and the ethical governance of digital transformation and artificial intelligence. There is a growing need to understand how technology influences society, the economy, and democratic systems. Additionally, fostering innovation, exploring alternative economic models, and utilizing art as a catalyst for social transformation are crucial for navigating these complex global shifts. Interested prospective authors should connect directly with the Dr. David F.J. Campbell (Asso. Prof. at University of Vienna, Email: david.campbell@univie.ac.at) and submit a first tentative abstract (with title and keywords).
