

Special Issue

Women, Gender and Politics: An International Overview

Message from the Guest Editor

This Special Issue focuses on women, gender and politics in international perspective with a particular emphasis on the interaction between local organizing and transnational politics; public policy and constructions of gender; effects of women's participation in electoral office, national governmental agencies, and international governance; gender differences in political participation, activism, and policy outcomes; and queer and transgender politics and policies. The goal is to produce an internationally diverse and broad interdisciplinary approach to the topic that brings diverse experiences and contexts into the frame. Theoretical, empirical, and practice-based studies and submissions from any disciplinary and methodological approach are welcomed.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

Social Sciences is an international open access peer-reviewed journal publishing the latest research across all disciplines of the social sciences including anthropology, criminology, economics, education, geography, history, law, linguistics, political science, psychology, social policy, social work, sociology and related areas. The journal is especially interested in interdisciplinary research, and aims to facilitate the interaction and communication between different social scientific disciplines. The journal welcomes conventional length articles as well as shorter Research Notes or short articles, as long as they meet the journal's standards of quality and originality.
