Labour Market Policies and Outcomes for People with Disabilities

Message from the Guest Editor

We invite authors to submit manuscripts that critically explore the existing labour market policies, bring to the surface the workplace challenges and barriers for individuals with disabilities, propose innovative measures, and highlight the best practices for improving their employment outcomes. The topics of interest include, but are not limited to, the impact of labour market policies on employment rates for people with disabilities; employment challenges/barriers for people with disabilities; employers' attitudes towards the hiring/recruitment of people with disabilities; employers' attitudes towards their employees with disabilities; co-workers of employees with disabilities and their working relations; workplace discrimination towards individuals with disabilities; mobbing and/or workplace sexual harassment of people with disabilities; the intersectionality of disability and employment with other factors such as gender, race, and socioeconomic status; work-related stress for individuals with disabilities and other work-related psychological consequences.
