Message from the Guest Editors

Dear Colleagues,

The recent global turmoil due to the COVID-19 pandemic wreaked havoc on worldwide air transport markets. After several months of lockdown, bringing global networks to a halt, airlines now are struggling to cope with rising demand as skies are gradually opening. As past experiences evidence repeatedly, the aviation sector will most likely recover. Yet, the shape of that recovery remains unknown.

This Special Issue aims to gather contributions from transport policy and planning to help understand aviation markets worldwide, both the current situation and the future outlook. We would like to receive manuscripts covering the aviation value chain, including manufacturers, airlines, airports, ground handlers, and other relevant third parties. The manuscripts in this Issue should reflect policies and measures taken at different decision levels (i.e., strategic decisions, tactical planning, and operational outcomes) and cover passengers and freight.

The ultimate goal of this Special Issue is to provide a set of measures, policies, and actions toward sustainability.

We look forward to receiving your papers.
