Message from the Guest Editor

Dear Colleagues,

This Special Issue seeks to advance the current state of research on sustainable lifestyles, behavior, and consumption. The overarching aim is to explore new perspectives on sustainability and sustainable consumption, by focusing on marketing and behavior change on sustainability-related topics. Interdisciplinary contributions are encouraged, and submissions may relate to the following broad theme examples:

- Green, responsible, and sustainable consumer behavior; Social marketing of sustainable or green behaviors.
- Specific sustainability issues and behaviors: e.g., avoiding and reducing waste, packaging waste, energy and water usage and pollution, travel and transportation choices and behaviors, sustainable fashion, reducing food miles and waste, etc.
- Marketing and facilitating sustainable consumption choices.
- Individual values, attitudes, and norms in sustainable consumption.
- Promoting green behavior, awareness, and mindfulness.
- Systems thinking and sustainability.
- Sustainable consumers and lifestyles.
- Demarketing to reduce consumption.
- Micromarketing and marketing systems approaches to sustainability; Marketing and the circular economy.
