Message from the Guest Editors

Dear Colleagues,

We develop a Special Issue Risk Assessment of Accidents for Sustainable Safety to develop safety theories, risk assessment methods, risk prevention, and analysis tools/frameworks for preventing accidents. We hope that the research findings and policy implications will help us to highlight the latest advances in the field of accident risk analysis and outline possible issues that need to be further explored to better provide a solid scientific basis and technological support for global and regional sustainable safety.

The research topics include, while not limited to:

- Risk assessment of accidents;
- Risk management related to accident prevention;
- Accident analysis and assessment;
- Literature review related to accident prevention and mitigation;
- Bibliometric analysis of accident-related research;
- Accident statistical analysis;
- Lessons from accidents;
- Accident simulation and evolution analysis;
- The relationship between safety and sustainability;
- Safety culture and safety climate research;
- Safety and resilience with respect to accidents;
- Safety barrier management for preventing accidents.
