Message from the Guest Editors

Dear Colleagues,

The aim of this Special Issue on “Biocultural Diversity and Nature Conservation” is to stimulate learning and debate on the role of biocultural and conservation approaches in understanding the relationship between local cultures and natural environments. The main scope of this Special Issue is to capture new insights through contributions related to biocultural diversity and nature conservation from cross-sectoral fields of social–ecological systems for the development of new ideas, knowledge, approaches, policies, and learning on sustainability science.

This Special Issue of Sustainability accepts submissions for reviews that combine topics on biocultural diversity and nature conservation. All scientific disciplines are welcome.

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

I encourage you to contribute a research or comprehensive review article for consideration for publication in Sustainability, an international Open Access journal which provides an advanced forum for research findings in areas related to sustainability and sustainable development. The journal publishes original research articles, reviews, conference proceedings (peer-reviewed full articles) and communications. I am confident you will find the journal contributes to enhancing understanding of sustainability and fostering initiatives and applications of sustainability-based measures and activities.
