Message from the Guest Editors

Dear Colleagues,

The COVID-19 pandemic has wreaked havoc on the global economy, causing business failure and global recession. Consequently, previously planned investments in sustainable projects, energy efficiency, and environmental preservation are expected to experience downward revisions. The significant pandemic-induced slowdown in economic activities affects sustainable projects negatively. Thus, it poses a significant threat to sustainable economic growth. Accordingly, new economic and business policies may be required to curtail these negative effects of the pandemic on sustainable projects.

This Special Issue of Sustainability is seeking theoretical, empirical, and policy-oriented papers which deal with the future of business success through sustainability in the post-COVID-19 world.

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

I encourage you to contribute a research or comprehensive review article for consideration for publication in Sustainability, an international Open Access journal which provides an advanced forum for research findings in areas related to sustainability and sustainable development. The journal publishes original research articles, reviews, conference proceedings (peer-reviewed full articles) and communications. I am confident you will find the journal contributes to enhancing understanding of sustainability and fostering initiatives and applications of sustainability-based measures and activities.
