Message from the Guest Editors

This Special Issue aims to bring together the latest research on sustainable business and marketing practices in SMEs. There are several areas of research that merit further research in the domain. For instance, what does sustainability mean to SMEs? How do SMEs implement sustainability in their business practice? What are the barriers and facilitators of implementing sustainability in business activity and marketing communications? What are the management and marketing challenges facing SMEs? How do SMEs market themselves as sustainable businesses? What are the marketing and innovation management strategies adopted by SMEs to practice sustainability?

In this Special Issue, we aim to encapsulate timely and original perspectives to the body of knowledge on SMEs, on the intersections of marketing, business management and sustainability. We welcome original research articles and reviews that explore topics relevant to sustainability development, sustainable marketing, sustainable business management, and sustainable innovation management through the lens of SMEs.
