Message from the Guest Editors

The current climate of ecological, social, and economic crises has created a shock that has disrupted all aspects of society, including both academic and entrepreneurial environments. Entrepreneurs, affected by changing identities and values, are pivoting against the unknown while seeking learning possibilities and more often are incorporating the sustainable development goals into their ventures' missions. For academia, there are more urgent calls for scholars to act in support of crisis-hit societies.

This Special Issue aims to highlight multidisciplinary approaches to examine, explore, and challenge existing notions of scholarship and entrepreneurship, within the theme of sustainable development. We welcome contributions from a variety of disciplines with mixed methods, where the covered topics of uncertainty, sustainability, and entrepreneurship—both as a scholarship and practice—intersect to better action for the changed reality. Studies exploring sustainable innovations under conditions of fundamental uncertainty (that include and go beyond the COVID-hit environments), and for sustainably coping with the security in environments are

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

I encourage you to contribute a research or comprehensive review article for consideration for publication in Sustainability, an international Open Access journal which provides an advanced forum for research findings in areas related to sustainability and sustainable development. The journal publishes original research articles, reviews, conference proceedings (peer-reviewed full articles) and communications. I am confident you will find the journal contributes to enhancing understanding of sustainability and fostering initiatives and applications of sustainability-based measures and activities.
