Message from the Guest Editors

This Special Issue therefore focuses on themes relevant to these issues, which could not be more relevant to a sustainable future:

Lessons learnt from the Covid-19 experience—whose health has benefited from access to local landscapes, whose health has not benefited in this way, and what needs to change for the future in light of this;

What are the challenges for inclusive access to landscapes for health among economically deprived groups and people from black and minority ethnic groups and how can they best be addressed?

Evidence of successful interventions to increase the equity of access to outdoor environments and, thereby, to reduce health inequalities.

Links between access to public outdoor space, including green/blue space, and health in the Global South, etc.

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

I encourage you to contribute a research or comprehensive review article for consideration for publication in Sustainability, an international Open Access journal which provides an advanced forum for research findings in areas related to sustainability and sustainable development. The journal publishes original research articles, reviews, conference proceedings (peer-reviewed full articles) and communications. I am confident you will find the journal contributes to enhancing understanding of sustainability and fostering initiatives and applications of sustainability-based measures and activities.
