Message from the Guest Editors

The goal of this Special Issue is to solicit recommendations for a research agenda from established experts in the field, and perhaps more importantly, from the coming generation of ecological economists who will be tasked with its implementation. For your submission, we ask that you:

1. Consider and remember the roots of EE through Daly and Farley's "call for a return to the beginnings of economics as a moral philosophy explicitly directed toward raising the quality of life of this and future generations".
2. Co-author papers with students, emerging scholars, and those with whom you have significant cross-over. If we receive abstracts with significant cross-over, we may ask the authors to write a collaborative paper.
3. Clearly identify the debate, discourse, or research agendas that you deem important and valuable for the future of EE.
4. Consider sketching the outlines of a doctoral thesis built on your proposed agenda, which would potentially increase your article's usefulness to the next generation of ecological economists and hence its impact.

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

I encourage you to contribute a research or comprehensive review article for consideration for publication in Sustainability, an international open access journal which provides an advanced forum for research findings in areas related to sustainability and sustainable development. The journal publishes original research articles, reviews, conference proceedings (peer reviewed full articles) and communications. I am confident you will find the journal contributes to enhancing understanding of sustainability and fostering initiatives and applications of sustainability-based measures and activities.
