Message from the Guest Editor

Humanity has transformed large parts of the Earth's land surface into settlement, agriculture, and managed forests with significant impacts on the structure and functioning of ecosystems. The looming climate crisis is likely to further increase pressures on the amount and quality of land resources. Hence, the development and implementation of more environmentally compatible land-use strategies that respect planetary boundaries becomes one of the key challenges for science, policy, and society in the coming decades.

This Special Issue aims to discuss strategies for more sustainable forms of land use from an environmental science perspective. It is open to submissions of original research papers and review articles that focus on case studies as well as on innovative analytical methods (e.g., simulation models, remote sensing approaches) and indicators. Analyses on the regional and the global scale are welcome.

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

I encourage you to contribute a research or comprehensive review article for consideration for publication in Sustainability, an international Open Access journal which provides an advanced forum for research findings in areas related to sustainability and sustainable development. Sustainability publishes original research articles, review articles and communications. I am confident you will find the journal contributes to enhancing understanding of sustainability and fostering initiatives and applications of sustainability-based measures and activities.

Author Benefits

Open Access: free for readers, with article processing charges \(APC\) paid by authors or their institutions.

High Visibility: indexed within Scopus, SCIE and SSCI \(Web of Science\), GEOBASE, GeoRef, Inspec, AGRIS, RePEc, CAPlus / SciFinder, and other databases.

Journal Rank: JCR - Q2 (Environmental Studies) / CiteScore - Q1 (Geography, Planning and Development)
