Message from the Guest Editor

Dear Colleagues,

In today's dynamic, disruptive, and constantly evolving business landscapes, corporations are confronted with the imperative of embracing new realities and successfully navigating change (Bodolica and Spraggon, 2020). Under these specific environmental conditions, challenges associated with leadership, management, and decision making abound.

We welcome a variety of contributions in relation to sustainable leadership, from the perspective of both theoretical frameworks and methodological approaches. Highlighting the diversity of manifestations in which leadership can build long-term value for a sustainable enterprise, qualitative (Bodolica et al., 2015), quantitative (Spraggon and Bodolica, 2011), conceptual (Spraggon and Bodolica, 2018) and literature review (Bodolica and Spraggon, 2018) articles are equally relevant for achieving the objectives of this Special Issue. Our aim is to create a fruitful platform for the development of a context-dependent knowledge base on the theory and practice of sustainable leadership from the standpoint of decision makers in public and private businesses and institutions.
