Message from the Guest Editors

This Special Issue invites original research papers and reviews focusing on the rural and urban farming development through the sustainable vegetable production under the climate change challenges. Special focus will be given to biodiversity-based farming systems, plant adaptation to abiotic stresses, and eco-efficient cropping systems, although other research topics related with vegetable production are also welcomed. The Special Issue aims to contribute to the literature on sustainable cultivation of vegetable crops and foster and reinforce vegetable production with modern tools towards rural and urban development. Topics are related but not limited to:

- Biodiversity
- Farming systems
- Local landraces
- Vegetable production
- Wild edible species
- Climate change
- Quality and safety
- Urban and rural farming

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

I encourage you to contribute a research or comprehensive review article for consideration for publication in Sustainability, an international Open Access journal which provides an advanced forum for research findings in areas related to sustainability and sustainable development. The journal publishes original research articles, reviews, conference proceedings (peer-reviewed full articles) and communications. I am confident you will find the journal contributes to enhancing understanding of sustainability and fostering initiatives and applications of sustainability-based measures and activities.

Author Benefits

Open Access:—free for readers, with article processing charges \(APC\) paid by authors or their institutions.

High visibility: indexed by the Science Citation Index Expanded and Social Sciences Citation Index (Web of Science), as well as Scopus and other databases.

Rapid Publication: manuscripts are peer-reviewed and a first decision provided to authors approximately 14.5 days after submission; acceptance to publication is undertaken in 2.9 days (median values for papers published in this journal in the first half of 2020).
