Message from the Guest Editors

This special issue aims to bring together your ideas to answer the question: What is a sustainable circular economy? Whether you are an academic or an expert in industry, government or the civil sector, we would like to hear from you:

- CRITIQUES: What is wrong with the current principles underpinning a circular economy? Where is theory underlying circular economy falling short? What are the unsustainable practices being presented as circular?
- DREAMS: What are the ideal outcomes when we implement a circular economy? What could and should a sustainable circular society be like? What are the important considerations that should frame our thinking about a sustainable future?
- IDEAS: What are the radical ideas that could strengthen the sustainability credentials of circular economy? What are the subject areas and societal, cultural and political beliefs, trends and philosophies that circular economy could learn from?
