Message from the Guest Editors

In this Special Issue, we provide an overview of how entrepreneurial education and training can strengthen the activities that promote social resilience in higher education institutions/systems. We are also looking for new openings on how entrepreneurial activity can create a basis for strengthening societies' capacity to respond better to current and emerging challenges. Furthermore, we aim to raise a discussion on entrepreneurial education as a driver of societal change and sustainability. In particular, the importance of entrepreneurial and entrepreneurship education and training is emphasised: Traditional academic education needs to be critically re-assessed to learn what kind of competencies we need to promote to foster the resilience of societies. On the other hand, we may look at how sustainable development of entrepreneurial education promotes resilience and societal change.
