Message from the Guest Editor

We are calling for papers for a Special Issue of the journal Sustainability on research to shed light into the environmental impacts of the so-called new forms of mobility.

Proposed papers for this Special Issue may analyze how impacts of shared mobility can change or not if migrating to a different car fleet and how this would impact on the environment, concerning the entire life cycle of the transport system. Papers should concern whether and how the adoption of electric and autonomous vehicles could impact air quality and which effect it could have on climate change (expected impact on global GHG emissions).
