Message from the Guest Editors

This Special Issue intends to provide a comparative state-of-the-art overview of research on housing inequality. For this purpose, we welcome papers that deal with (elements of) the following two research questions.

1. How does the interplay between international, national, and local actors and processes result in housing inequality, empirically but also theoretically?
2. Which new housing solutions (government policies, social innovations, civil society initiatives) can (potentially) combat the different forms of housing inequality, thereby resulting in housing systems that are more affordable, socially sustainable, and inclusive? What is the rationale underlying these solutions? How have they been developed? To what extent are these solutions transferable to other contexts?
