Message from the Guest Editors

This Special Issue “From Over-Tourism to Zero-Tourism: Opportunities for a New Beginning?” addresses key changes and current opportunities in tourism and business, covering a wide range of topics related to negative external shock caused by the COVID-19 pandemic. In this Special Issue, we aim to cover both tourism demand and supply. We also invite papers that engage with the impact of the pandemic on sustainable tourism, answering the questions about the long-term effects of COVID-19 and the future of responsible and sustainable tourism after the crisis. Special Issue also aims to cover the broad topic of current and future opportunities for the tourism industry.

This Special Issue will include extended and enriched versions of selected peer-reviewed papers presented at the 4th International Conference on Tourism and Business (ICTB) (<https://www.hslu.ch/en/lucerne-school-of-business/research/conferences/ictb>). The conference will be held in Lucerne, Switzerland, 24-27 August 2022.

We welcome papers concentrating on local, regional and international perspectives on tourism recovery and resilience, with special attention to comparison of different regions of countries.
