Message from the Guest Editor

Dear Colleagues,

This Special Issue includes and welcomes original research that enhances our level of knowledge on critical aspects affecting sustainable and innovative development in our rural areas, with a particular focus on the following:

a) Processes of change in rural areas, in strategic fields such as new business models, changing labor markets, public infrastructures and innovative transport and social services, etc.

b) Cross-sectoral rural–urban relationships, based on and including flows of goods and services, extended labor markets as well as other relationships based on funding or social interactions.

c) Territorial or socially innovative governance schemes taking into account the role of different groups of stakeholders, empowerment and the role of civil society, cross-sectoral governance mechanisms, etc.

d) Policies and strategies aimed at the sustainable and innovative development of rural territories.
