Message from the Guest Editor

This Special Issue of Sustainability entitled “Social and Technological Progress. Industry 4.0” aims at presenting the results of research on technological and social progress as well as their interaction as a consequence of the so-called Industry 4.0 era. The thematic issue offers an excellent opportunity to exchange experiences among different research centers and professionals dealing with issues related to the Industry 4.0, technological progress, and its impact on society. The published work will provide an excellent source of information on the current state of knowledge regarding social and technological progress in the course of 4 industrial revolutions. The articles will inspire further research, the results of which will enable a better understanding of social and technological changes as well as interactions between them.
