Research is required to achieve sustainable fashion, and the time is right for research collaborations by all parties involved: public, private, and voluntary sectors; law- and policy-makers; and academics. We are pleased to announce a Special Issue: Sustainable Fashion: Culture, Management, and Consumption. The purpose of this Special Issue is to facilitate an in-depth discussion on sustainable fashion and provide a forum for discussing research findings to highlight critical issues.

We will focus on the impact of lifestyle and culture on sustainable fashion; the strategies needed and implemented for the sustainable development and management of innovation and businesses to advance circular fashion systems; the successful implementation of sustainable business-related solutions; and enhancing sustainable consumption. It will cover the holistic integration of economic, environmental, social, and cultural sustainability issues in all aspects of the fashion industry and allow scholars to offer valuable insights into various sustainability issues. We are open to both conceptual studies and empirical analyses based on qualitative and quantitative methodological approaches.

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

I encourage you to contribute a research or comprehensive review article for consideration for publication in Sustainability, an international open access journal which provides an advanced forum for research findings in areas related to sustainability and sustainable development. The journal publishes original research articles, reviews, conference proceedings (peer reviewed full articles) and communications. I am confident you will find the journal contributes to enhancing understanding of sustainability and fostering initiatives and applications of sustainability-based measures and activities.
