As many researchers' interest in sustainable health continues to grow due to the recent super-aging, research on the effective analysis and utilization of healthcare and medical data is becoming more important. However, as it is difficult to estimate the impact caused by the leakage of sensitive personal medical information, the use of personal medical information in the deep web is very limited. In order to revitalize various healthcare studies, in-depth research on information distribution between the deep web and the WWW is required. In addition, thorough privacy protection for the sensitive information on the deep web is required. This Special Issue provides a platform for researchers from academia and industry to present their novel and unpublished work in the domain of healthcare data. This will help to foster future research in emerging fields of healthcare data analytics and its applications.

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

I encourage you to contribute a research or comprehensive review article for consideration for publication in Sustainability, an international Open Access journal which provides an advanced forum for research findings in areas related to sustainability and sustainable development. The journal publishes original research articles, reviews, conference proceedings (peer-reviewed full articles) and communications. I am confident you will find the journal contributes to enhancing understanding of sustainability and fostering initiatives and applications of sustainability-based measures and activities.
