Message from the Guest Editors

This Special Issue aims at investigating the progress on innovative and smart transparent envelopes and their effects on the users’ comfort and building energy consumption. Scientific and multidisciplinary research on innovative and smart transparent envelopes able to improve human comfort and building efficiency looking beyond the limits of current knowledge is welcomed.

Experimental and theoretical approaches to new methodologies or procedures to evaluate the visual and thermal performances of transparent components are appreciated as well.

We are also calling on case studies, articles, and reviews on sustainable energy preservation and regeneration methods, innovative prototypes, simulation methodologies, simulation software relevant for visual and thermal building users’ comfort, as well as for the reduction of building energy consumption and correlated effects on the environment.

We look forward to your contribution to this Special Issue.
