Message from the Guest Editors

Special Issue “Accessible Tourism Destinations”, submitted contributions are expected to include, but are not limited to, the following:

- Theoretical underpinnings on accessible tourism and the hospitality sector, preferably with a sustainability outlook;
- Empirical evidence of accessible tourism from stakeholders across the tourism supply chain who aim to contribute to the promotion of their regions as competitive international tourist destinations for people with disabilities and reduced mobility;
- Evidence from representatives of the disability movement and from individuals coming from population groups with similar needs to inform about the actual accessibility requirements and needs and to guide future research in the field;
- Policy-making initiatives on creating common strategies toward improving accessibility, in parallel with regional economic development and tourism business sustainability;
- Innovative services and technological applications that enable and improve accessibility to tourist destinations for people with some form of disability.
