Entrepreneurship and Sustainable Development in Economic Transformation

Message from the Guest Editors

Sustainable development has emerged as an influential, albeit controversial, concept for business and policy, and there is growing recognition that a fundamental transformation is needed to reduce the detrimental environmental and societal impacts created by our currently unsustainable managerial. Entrepreneurship is increasingly being recognized as a significant conduit for bringing about a transformation to sustainable products and processes.

We encourage original submissions, as well as review articles, theoretical, and empirical contributions related to the following themes:

- Entrepreneurship in reduction of poverty;
- Entrepreneurship in the promotion of well-being;
- Entrepreneurship in entrepreneurial education;
- Entrepreneurship in affordable/clean energy;
- Entrepreneurship in circular economy.

The purpose of this Special Issue is to begin to address this gap. We hope this Special Issue offers considerable insights, but there remain ample opportunities for further research in this emerging area, for instance, in terms of the potential for societal transformation.
