

Special Issue

Electromobility for Sustainable Transportation

Message from the Guest Editors

The aim of this Special Issue is to examine the issue of electromobility in its broadest sense through the prism of transport and discuss the prospects and challenges for the development of global transport systems. The influence of fossil fuel companies and internal combustion engine manufacturers on the development of electric transport and the international economy will also be presented. Proposed (sample) topic areas are:

- The history of the development of electric cars;
- Tesla Cybertruck—a revolution in transport?
- Aviation without internal combustion engines—is it possible?
- Electric batteries—types and characteristics;
- Electric trucks—perspectives and challenges;
- Chinese electric cars—does low price ensure good quality?
- Electric battery technology;
- Recycling of lithium batteries;
- Safety of electric cars;
- Chemical reactions in lithium batteries.

The thematic areas indicated above are only examples—we strongly encourage you to go beyond them. We look forward to receiving your contributions

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

I encourage you to contribute a research or comprehensive review article for consideration for publication in Sustainability, an international open access journal which provides an advanced forum for research findings in areas related to sustainability and sustainable development. The journal publishes original research articles, reviews, conference proceedings (peer reviewed full articles) and communications. I am confident you will find the journal contributes to enhancing understanding of sustainability and fostering initiatives and applications of sustainability-based measures and activities.
