Sustainable Utilization and Development of Geothermal Water

Message from the Guest Editors

The purpose of this Special Issue is to show the most interesting and novel examples of recent developments in geothermics and geothermal water exploration, research and sustainable utilization. We intend to collect a series of high-quality papers presenting the wide scope of recent studies of geothermal waters, successful applications of novel research methods, innovative technologies for the use of geothermal waters and the climatic and socio-economic effects on the surrounding environment. We look forward to receiving your contributions.
