Reshaping Infrastructure for a Sustainable and Resilient Future

Message from the Guest Editors

We welcome studies on any of the key physical infrastructure sectors, including water, energy, food, sheltering, transportation, communications, sanitation, debris, waste management, and public spaces. Submissions could relate, but are not limited, to the following topics:

- Exploring multi-dimensions of infrastructure resilience and sustainability and their relationships;
- Theoretical or analytical frameworks to integrate climate change mitigation and adaption in infrastructure planning;
- Advancing the measurements to track infrastructure resilience and sustainability;
- Innovative practices to integrate climate change mitigation and adaption in infrastructure management;
- Challenges and strategies for improving infrastructure resilience and sustainability in rural communities;
- Innovative applications using techniques such as artificial intelligence and machine learning in improving infrastructure resilience and sustainability;
- Resilience to compounded disasters (i.e., hurricanes and pandemics);
- Challenges and strategies for improving infrastructure resilience and sustainability in underserved communities in urban settings.
