Structuring Innovation and Sustainability in Organizations and Sustainable Performance

Message from the Guest Editors

Sustainability and innovation are strongly connected to the ideas of value and sustainable performance practices are needed to benefit environmental, social and economic aspects and to fulfill the pillars of working for the betterment of the planet, its prosperity and people (Triple Bottom Line). We believe that there are different issues that can be addressed, such as the following: 1. Sustainable innovation; 2. Different practices and benefits of ecological and environmental management; 3. Sustainable and regenerative development; 4. Sustainable human resource management; 5. Sustainable leadership; 6. Digitalization, technology, and sustainable solutions; 7. Sustainable knowledge management; 8. Sustainable entrepreneurship; 9. Sustainable business models; 10. Sustainable performance; 11. Sustainable marketing. Original research articles and reviews are welcome in this Special Issue. We look forward to receiving your contributions.
