Sustainable Education for the Future: Digital Innovation and Collaborative Learning

Message from the Guest Editor

The primary focus of this Special Issue is to examine the intersection between digital technologies and collaborative pedagogies in advancing sustainable education. It seeks to provide a platform for researchers, educators, and practitioners to share empirical findings, theoretical insights, and practical experiences. In particular, the issue encourages contributions that investigate how emerging technologies—such as artificial intelligence, learning analytics, virtual and augmented reality, and online and blended learning platforms—can be meaningfully integrated with collaborative learning strategies. These integrations have the potential to enhance student engagement, promote critical thinking and problem-solving skills, and support the development of sustainability-oriented competencies.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

I encourage you to contribute a research or comprehensive review article for consideration for publication in Sustainability, an international open access journal which provides an advanced forum for research findings in areas related to sustainability and sustainable development. The journal publishes original research articles, reviews, conference proceedings (peer reviewed full articles) and communications. I am confident you will find the journal contributes to enhancing understanding of sustainability and fostering initiatives and applications of sustainability-based measures and activities.
