

Special Issue

Sustainable Management: Economic and Business Development

Message from the Guest Editors

We are pleased to invite you to contribute to this Special Issue of Sustainability, which will explore the linkages between the green economy and sustainable development economics by presenting new and innovative research. The green economy has emerged as an essential policy framework for sustainable economic development in developed and developing countries in the last two decades, considering that global warming has become more apparent. The leading world organisations, such as the World Bank, IMF, UNDP, and WTO, urge countries to transform their traditional economic structures into green economies. In order to achieve the United Nations' Sustainable Development Goals and to meet net-zero emissions targets, many countries have started to adopt green economy principles in different sectors of their economies with many innovative financial and economic approaches. This Special Issue of Sustainability invites researchers to present manuscripts from both the perspective of sustainability issues as well as from the perspective of linking research ideas.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

I encourage you to contribute a research or comprehensive review article for consideration for publication in Sustainability, an international Open Access journal which provides an advanced forum for research findings in areas related to sustainability and sustainable development. Sustainability publishes original research articles, review articles and communications. I am confident you will find the journal contributes to enhancing understanding of sustainability and fostering initiatives and applications of sustainability-based measures and activities.
