Water Environmental Control of Pollutants and Environmental Sustainability

Message from the Guest Editors

Eco-civilisation is the advanced civilisation beyond modern industrial civilisation. To understand and build an ecological civilisation, we need to have a comprehensive understanding of the generation, migration and transformation of pollutants and their ecological risks. On this basis, we can adopt more effective governance means and management measures to realise the sustainable development of the ecological environment. Here, we are pleased to announce the launch of a Special Issue focusing on the topic of "Water Environmental Control of Pollutants and Environmental Sustainability". Topics of the Special Issue include, but are not limited to, the following:

- (1) Environmental distribution or pollution
- (2) Theory and technology of pollution control
- (3) Environmental management or sustainability
