

Special Issue

Environment, Climate, and Sustainable Economic Development

Message from the Guest Editors

This Special Issue aims to develop new knowledge and reach a broad audience of academic researchers, practitioners, and regulators with novel research on the topic of Environment, Climate, and Sustainable Economic Development. We welcome submissions that represent original, high-quality theoretical and empirical research, as well as policy-oriented research papers. We particularly encourage research that focuses on climate-related and environmental risks/factors and their relationships with sustainable economic development. Possible research topics include but are not limited to climate-related and environmental risks/factors and their relationships with sustainable economic growth, sustainable financing, green economy, ESG investing, asset pricing, and financial stability.

About the Journal

Message from the Editor-in-Chief

I encourage you to contribute a research or comprehensive review article for consideration for publication in Sustainability, an international Open Access journal which provides an advanced forum for research findings in areas related to sustainability and sustainable development. Sustainability publishes original research articles, review articles and communications. I am confident you will find the journal contributes to enhancing understanding of sustainability and fostering initiatives and applications of sustainability-based measures and activities.
